Fragment of a hollow figurine. No fire cores, fire clouding or burning. Hardness: 1.8. Surface is smooth, with the exterior of the figurine being smoother than the interior which is rough and chipped. The design appears to represent an earpool and a large headress with a severely everted margin. The earpool appears to have been formed separately and then applied, incised and smoothed. It is 1.5 cm in diameter. The flange appears to have applied and then smoothed as well. It extends .9 cm from the body of the fragment. There is no paint or slip.
